RESPONSIBILITIES

The Internal Communication Manager will work with the VP HR, Stanley Black & Decker (SBD) Industrial Joining Systems & Solutions (JSS), its HR Leaders, Business Leaders and other communications teams, as well as internal stakeholders to ensure timely and consistent communication and engagement between all people within the SBD Industrial JSS. This global role will help ensure consistent and equitable application of communication and engagement programs and tools across a functional area or location and lead its improvement and those of other employee related programs. This includes the regular use and championing of our internal communications platform, ensuring it is fully embedded into daily working life and it provides an effective two-way flow of information with employees. He/she will have responsibility for developing an engaged internal community of employee groups both in person and online, promoting the adoption of sharing and social collaboration. He/she will take a consultative approach to engaging with business managers on communication programs and will provide HR management support. You will execute on talent initiatives and act as a change agent to enable the growth & development of the company's people.

Shape The Future With Us

- By working in conjunction with the HR Lead for Industrial JSS and other stakeholders, develop and manage the content plan for internal communication in line with strategic and operational requirements. Manage internal communications projects alongside stakeholders.
- Plan, edit and write content for a variety of internal communication channels for communicating with managers and people internally, ensuring the alignment of internal and external messages and communications.
- Plan and organize regular events which encourage two-way dialogue between management and employees, as well as colleagues in different teams to encourage knowledge sharing.
- Accelerate SBD's online internal communications platforms which is used on a regular basis by all employees
- Communication channels will be developed further such as focus group discussions, skip level meetings, roundtable and employee newsletters, which will enable employees to connect to and access information more easily, share knowledge and experience, and feel more engaged in what is going on across the whole of the JSS.

- Identify, commission and promote quality content and usage across internal communications platforms, managing online communities and ensuring employees adhere to the terms of use and GDPR regulations. In addition, ensure all internal communications content is consistent with our brand and tone of voice.
- Interpret internal communications data and employee feedback to evaluate and improve internal communications and employee engagement.
- Manage the internal communication response to crisis situations which affect organizational perception and reputation.

What We're Looking For
